

SAQ 1

Correct Answer:	a. The author of this document is upset over the varying shipping rates charged by the railroad companies. They see these secret rebates or kickbacks as wildly unfair. They would argue that railroads have gained too much power in the government, and have actually almost subverted the federal government in terms of power. They want to see the same rates charged to all as a matter of fairness. b. Students might discuss the impoverished farmers in the west who were the most angered by the varying shipping rates. They were influenced by the populists of the 1870s, and formed Granges to protest and push for future legislation to be passed within the states. They might also discuss the passage of the Interstate Commerce Act (1887), which required the railroads to publish their rates publicly. Notably, it was the attempt by the federal government to regulate business for the benefit of society. c. Obviously, the railroad industry disagreed with this legislation. Students might also mention the Wabash case which limited the ability to regulate to the federal government.

SAQ 2

Correct Answer:	a. The Populist Party emerged from the concerns of unhappy farmers (particularly cotton and wheat) and concerns over the power of capitalists and corporations, banks and railroads. Farmers in the midwest had gone into debt improving their farms, and buying expensive mechanical machinery, and b. and c. Although Populism cannot be credited with all of these changes, the concerns expressed for these issues, and the attention brought them from the Federal government is directly tied with the rise of the Populist movement. Populists called for the government takeover of railroads, telephones and telegraphs, they wanted to expand the money supply (this eventually became the cry for this
